

BODY TO SELL; APPLY TO OWNER.

Having Nothing Else to Dispose of, Biesch Offers Himself.

HIS ANATOMY FOR BREAD

Starving Bavarian Thinks His Corpse Might at Least Bring Food Money.

ADVERTISEMENT TO MEDICAL MEN

His Only Hope Is That as He Cannot Fill His Framework Living, He May Fill the Cupboards Dead.

Camden, N. J., April 10.—To save his wife and four children from starvation Henry Biesch, of No. 1033 Pine street, is willing to sell his body to any doctor or college for experiment after he is dead.

This morning a lad of twelve went into the office of a newspaper and, handing the clerk the following advertisement, asked to have it inserted in the paper:

FOR SALE.
A MAN is willing to sell his body to any college or doctor at once for experiment after he is dead, 1033 Pine street, Camden, N. J.

Up until to-night he has received no offers. Biesch was seen at his home to-day. He is a Bavarian, forty-seven years old, has been in this country eighteen years and is naturalized.

His story was one of sadness and disappointment. He had lost his situation, and had tried in vain to get another. He had received some aid from the Citizens' Relief Association, but what he wanted was work, and this he could not get. He had sold all of his furniture, and now he was asking to sell himself. His wife has done what she could to help along, but even she was unable to get any more work.

Ready to Die at Any Time.
Biesch said he had heard of people selling their bodies to doctors and colleges and thought some one might buy this. "But when do you expect to die?" he was asked.

He shrugged his shoulders and smiled as he replied: "Perhaps to-morrow. When a man is poor it's not much use for him to live." When asked how he expected to get for his body, he said he thought about $400 or $500, and when told that bodies at $5 or $10 a piece could be had for the asking, he shrugged his shoulders again and said that amount wouldn't even pay his debts.

He seemed to be utter despair and to be perfectly willing to die, if by doing so he could provide for his family.
